

Debora Valentina Malito is A. W. Mellon Postdoctoral Research Fellow in Humanities at the University of Cape Town. She has been a Research Associate at Global Governance Programme (Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies) of the European University Institute. She has conducted multi-disciplinary research projects on: Global Governance by Indicators (EUI), The Political Economy of Measuring Governance (in collaboration between the University of Manchester's ESID and EUI), Responsibility, Protection and Sovereignty in Africa (funded by the A. W. Mellon Foundation).

She holds a MA in International Relations, and a PhD in Political Studies from the University of Milan. Her research interests focus on critical studies of international intervention, state building and governance, with particular attention to: the politics, power and authority of governance metrics; the measurability of political orders; peace and state formation process; African security governance.

She has recently co-authored The Palgrave Handbook of Indicators in Global Governance (in press) with G. Umbach and N. Bhuta. Her publications have appeared in International Peacekeeping, Third World Quarterly, Peace Review. She is currently working on dilemma of legitimacy and efficacy raised by the international intervention in Libya.
