

Matthias Rumpf is a communication manager at OECD. Based in Berlin, he is in charge of media relations and public affairs for Austria, Germany and Switzerland and worked on similar positions Paris and Washington DC. He is a practitioner on turning statistical data and social research into political messages, both for expert and non-expert audiences. At OECD, he spearheaded data driven communication and developed various online applications to communicate statistics and analytical findings more effectively.

Before joining the OECD, he worked as a journalist on economics and EU affairs in Brussels and Berlin. He holds a diploma in political science from the Free University of Berlin, where he lectured on data driven policy making.